SKETCHES BY M. QUAD

The Colonel's Drink.

As four or five of us sat talking and smoking Colonel Basil came up the steps and joined us and introduced himself. After some general talk he said: "Gentlemen, I am rather absent-minded at times, and I beg to be excused if I have met any of you before and failed to remember it."

We assured him in chorus that it was our first meeting, and he continued: "I had an indistinct idea that I had been asked to drink with you, but I am not sure about it. If so, I probably accepted. If not, then I beg to be excused."

We assured him that none of us had ever asked him to drink, he having been a stranger to us until a few minutes before, nor did we invite him then to go in and take a nip. He seemed cast down for a moment, but finally rallied and said:

"Absentmindedness is a great failing of mine, and I really must try to overcome it. Now, that I look at you more closely, it seems to me that I was here this afternoon and introduced myself, and that the gentleman on the right rose up and asked us all in to take something. I say it seems so, but I can't be sure. If so—"

The "gentleman on the right" interrupted him to say that he arrived at the hotel at noon, and the colonel must therefore be mistaken.

"Then I beg your pardon," said our caller. "As a general rule, when I am invited to drink I remember the incident very clearly for several days afterward, but it seems that I am off in this instance. Memory is a treacherous thing when one gets to be my age."

Something was said about politics, but before the talk had gone far the colonel rose up and said: "Gentlemen, I beg your pardon, but a thought has struck me. Did I ask any one in this crowd to change a $5 bill?"

He was assured that he had asked nothing of the sort, and, feeling about in his pockets, he continued:

"It somehow seemed to me that I had and that none of you could do it and that the gentleman on the left handed me a quarter to get a drink with and said I could hand it in this evening. If I am in error—"

He was in error. The "gentleman on the left" solemnly assured him that no such thing had happened.

"Well, I'll take your word for it," sighed the colonel. "Do you, gentlemen, usually take a nip about this hour of the day?"

We did not. Our hour for taking a nip had long passed and wouldn't come around again until the next forenoon. The colonel walked over and looked into the barroom and then came back to say:

"Gentlemen, I have an indistinct idea that I have met this crowd before."

"No, colonel, you haven't."

"But I insist that I have. At least, it was a crowd numbering the same and right here on this veranda, and though I gave them plainly to understand that I was as dry as cotton I was not invited to participate. Yes, gentlemen, I am sure we have met before, and that you are no gentlemen, and that I am the only gentleman here, and that you can all go to grass, and I will buy my own whisky, and be hanged to you!"

Betting on a Bear.

At Rawson Junction we found a man with a big black bear in a cage on the platform. He explained that bruin had been taken in a trap three days before and that he was going to take him down to Silver City to sell him to a saloon keeper for $50. While we were surveying the captive an old man rode up on a cayuse, followed by about the meanest looking dog ever seen in the glorious west. The canine was sprint eyed, bobtailed and poor in flesh, and when rallied about the animal the old man explained that, while his looks were as in him, the dog was really a fighter of the first water. He leaped up and took a look at the bear and another look at his owner and finally said:

"Mister, I reckon you sarter brag on that b'ar o' yours?"

"There's no call to brag," was the reply.

"I didn't know but you was braggin and blingin as to how he could fight. If

Our I's and Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn., who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Any doubt about it? Send for the "Curebook." It kills doubts and cures doubters. Address: J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.
